

Dr. Miles' Nervine Victorious.

Physical and Mental Exhaustion Gives Way to Vigorous Activity.

REV. W. T. BOUCK, the talented pastor of Grace U. Church, Carlisle, Penn., writes September 28, 1892: "I always enjoyed good health until 1885, at which time my duties as a clergyman were of a peculiarly trying nature, subjecting me to several severe nervous shocks which together with overwork and anxiety, impaired my general health and nervous system. Indeed I was in such a condition that the mere sight of a large congregation so wearied me that it would require a day or more for me to recover from the exhaustion. It affords me great pleasure to say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Restorative Tonic have done me untold good. I preached three times yesterday and I feel as fresh and vigorous this Monday morning as I ever felt in my life, thanks to your remedies. Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants. DR. McKENLEY has had a long experience in public life and has a wide acquaintance among public men. He can be safely trusted to select a strong cabinet as his official family.

Compulsory attendance at school is one of the ideas this legislature should make a law. Education is the proper end of republican institutions, and parents who will not should be compelled to send their children to school.—Pendleton Record.

A fair and equitable apportionment, not a gerrymander is what our people want and what the republican party is under obligation to enact. The supreme court has made the gerrymander a thing of the past and it will be folly on the part of our legislators to attempt to pass anything but a fair apportionment.

The negotiation of the arbitration treaty between this country and Great Britain is one of the most important movements in these closing days of the century. By its provisions a tribunal for arbitration is to be formed from members of the supreme courts of the two countries and all disputes arising between the two countries are to be referred to it for settlement. This plan is to be tested for a period of five years and if satisfactory may be renewed.

One reason the populists will never succeed is because they are always preaching the doctrine of pessimism. Everything is going wrong and the country is "going to the bow-wows" in their eyes. Men like to look on the bright side of things and no party which feeds on the shady side of life can hope for any great measure of success.

MARSHALL FIELD, one of the largest dry goods merchants in Chicago has made the important statement to the ways and means committee that the importation of all dry goods is falling into the hands of foreign manufacturers and merchants. This is important to the importers who have been free traders. The foreign merchant and manufacturer are able to do this because they can put a lower valuation upon their goods than they will give to an American importer, and this, under the ad valorem system, enables the foreigners to drive the American importer out of the business. In time, under the pernicious Wilson-Gorman act, the foreign importers will have their own jobbing houses in this country and their imported traveling men. Still the theoretical free trader will continue to denounce those who desire to repeal the tariff law which, robs the treasury by fraudulent valuations and transfers the trade of American citizens to for-

GOV. MOUNT'S INAUGURAL.

In his inaugural yesterday, Gov. Mount displayed the same common sense that has characterized him as a farmer. The address is not a mere accumulation of words, idle words, but is full of substance which will bear perusal with great care. He drives straight to his mark and there is no uncertainty in what he has to say.

He gives the legislature some timely advice while warning them against the work of the lobbyists who bring all their powerful influence to bear for the enactment of legislation in the interest of classes. He sounds the right note when he says: "Laws should be founded upon principles of interdependence of all our industries, business interests, pursuits, callings and relations of capital and labor—of employer and employee."

The governor urges the enactment of "a mild compulsory education law" and gives a practical farmer, he urges what the farmers most need, better roads, better live stock laws and more effective measures for the suppression of diseases which become epidemic among live stock.

What he says concerning the centennial celebration is timely and sensible and leaves no doubt as to his position on the question:

"The committee provided for by the last General Assembly, with instructions to report to this honorable body on the subject of centennial celebration of territorial organization, are entitled to much credit for their faithful service. They have manifested a laudable state pride which is reciprocated by the progressive people of our state. If this centennial is to be observed, their plans possess much merit. The prevailing opinion, however, is that any exposition that would be creditable to our state will necessitate a vast expenditure of money. A celebration conducted with a limited expenditure, following so soon after the World's Columbian Exposition, would be attended with failure and would reflect discredit upon our state. The advisability of the observance, then, hinges upon the wisdom of expending a sufficient sum of money to insure success, and the ability of the state to bear such expenditure. Any great outlay of money at this time must argument our already heavy state debt and add to the burden of taxation. The best service that can be rendered our state, both as to its credit and honor and the welfare of our people is the adoption of a system of economy that will reduce our debt and lower the rate of taxation."

On the subject of trusts which is receiving a great deal of attention among state legislatures this winter he says: "Trusts or combinations of capital for the purpose of counteracting the law of supply and demand and with a view to arbitrarily controlling, manipulating or increasing the prices of any product, commodity or article of merchandise, should be declared a barrier to trade, and should be prohibited by law."

The message is stronger on a second reading and will convince the people of the state that no mistake was made in their choice of the leading farmer of Montgomery county as their chief executive.

At Indianapolis to-day the monetary conference is gathered and the whole country will watch their proceedings with interest. The object of this convention is to consider in detail the needs of our financial system, and to present to congress various recommendations for monetary reforms. The views of practical financiers, closely identified with business affairs and speaking with the voice of experience will no doubt exercise strong influence in shaping the future policy of the Nation.

The Year's Eclipse.

Two eclipses of the sun are scheduled for the year 1897. The first one will take place, the astronomers say, February 1. It is what is known as an annular, or ring eclipse, which means that the moon will pass across the center in such a way that if an observer were in a favorable position he would see a large black spot in the face of the chief luminary, with a wide ring of light all about it. This will be visible to North America, south of a line drawn through Boston, Memphis and Los Angeles, California. It will be best observed in the country from the southern states. The second eclipse, due July 29, will be visible in all parts of the country.

The great popularity of good standard England is shown by the recently published volume of judicial statistics which shows that an estate was administered for every ten deaths, or one estate for every five adults, whether male or female, though savings banks deposits to the amount of £100 do not require administration.

The progressive ladies of Westfield Ind., issued a "Woman's Edition" of the Westfield News, bearing date of April 3, 1896. The paper is filled with matter of interest to women, and we notice the following from a correspondent, which the editors printed, realizing that it treats upon a matter of vital importance to their sex: "The best remedy for croup, colds and bronchitis that I have been able to find is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For family use it has no equal. I gladly recommend it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by C. W. Milhous.

The man with the standing ad is the solid man of the community. In summer or winter, in sunshine or rain, his name greets the public eye with every issue of the paper, and the public come in time to regard him as well established in successful business, whether they have been his patrons or not. "Nothing succeeds like success," and the public once getting the idea that a man is doing well, stands ready to patronize him and turns to him naturally when it wants anything in his line. In this simple fact lies the whole secret of persistent advertising.

DR. CHARLTON DEAD.

One of Seymour's Oldest and Most Honored Physicians Died This Morning.

Samuel H. Charlton, M. D., died at 3 o'clock a. m., Jan. 12, 1897, aged 70 years, 2 months and 11 days. He has been very feeble in health ever since the death of his wife over a year ago and has been confined to his home for more than three months.

Dr. Charlton was born in Jefferson county, Ind., Nov. 1, 1826, being the eldest of eleven children born to Thomas and Alice Henry Charlton. At the age of 4 his father removed to Switzerland county where he raised and educated his children. In 1846 at the age of 20, he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Handy T. Davis then practicing medicine at Vevay, and later continued his studies with Dr. T. G. Gale, of Vevay. In the spring of 1850 after attending a course of lectures at the Western Reserve Medical College, at Cleveland, Ohio, he commenced the practice of his profession at Hardenburg, Jennings county. In Dec. 1852 he was married to Cordelia Andrews, daughter of Hon. Alanson and Laura Andrews, of Vernon, Jennings county, to which place he removed in 1854. In March, 1858, he removed to Seymour, where he permanently located and practiced his profession for over 35 years.

During the civil war he was assistant surgeon of the Sixth Indiana regiment. In 1878 he was president of the Jackson County Medical Society; in the same year he was president of the Mitchell District Medical Society; in 1881 he was first vice president of the Tri-State Medical Society of Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky; in 1882 he was vice president of the Indiana State Medical Society; in 1887 he became a member of the International Medical Congress which met at Washington City. In 1890 he was appointed a member of the pension board of examining surgeons and, at its organization was elected president of the board.

Dr. Charlton and his wife were two zealous members of the First Presbyterian church of Seymour. He has been a ruling elder for 23 years, and in 1879 was a commissioner to the general assembly at Saratoga, N. Y. In his fraternal relations he holds a membership with the orders of Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Honor and G. A. R.

The immediate relatives of Dr. Charlton who are still living are his brothers and sister as follows: Prof. T. A. Charlton, superintendent of the Plainfield reform school, Orlando C. Charlton, of Waco, Tex., Mrs. Scott of Madison, and a brother near Vevay.

Dr. Charlton stood high with his fellow citizens both as a professional man and as a progressive citizen. He has contributed materially toward building up the interests of Seymour. In professional circles he was widely known and highly respected as is indicated by the large honors which came to him from his professional brethren.

The funeral will take place in the Presbyterian church to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Stevenson.

Held the Money in His Mouth.

A race-track gambler, known as Sheeny Dan died on New Year's day in New York from blood poisoning, due it is thought to holding greenbacks in his mouth while making bets on horses. A short time ago he bit his lip by accident, and it began to swell up and trouble him greatly. He also hurt his leg about the same time, blood poisoning set in, and the best of treatment failed to save him.

Indiana's New Governor.

South Bend times. Indiana's future governor, James A. Mount, has as much of a practical business way of conducting his farm as the successful merchants or manufacturers have of conducting their enterprises. Professor Arville Bittling, of Purdue University, was brought up on a farm in Marshall county. He is now a specialist in bacteriology with special reference to diseases of animals. He is also a friend of Governor Mount and is frequently at the governor's farm in Montgomery county to examine stock. On one of these visits a little over a year ago, the subject of hog cholera was thoroughly discussed and Governor Mount decided from the prevalence of the disease in different sections of the state it would not be safe to invest in hogs to feed for the fall market of 1896 for 1895 amounted to the snug sum of $3,500. His farm was put to corn and he now has 8,000 bushels of that cereal. A great many farmers would say at this point "the governor missed it." Corn is only 17 cents per bushel. But the governor did not miss it. He is feeding seventy head of cattle and he is going to feed all of his corn to his stock. In the spring, after his neighbors and other farmers have wintered their cattle and have no more feed for them, he will buy them as cheap as he could last fall. He thus saves feed, shelter and care in winter. The feed required to keep the stock warm in winter will about fatten them in the summer. This is the business side of farming, and it is the practical business that has made Governor Mount authority on farm topics for several years, and places him in the front rank of Indiana's most successful and prosperous farmers. His farm is among the very best in the state.

AFFLICTED.

Harmon Resner is quite feeble with infirmity.

George B. Stout is feeling much better to-day.

Miss Maud Carter was able to sit up most of yesterday.

Alex Groff is improving some from the effects of back trouble.

Mrs. George Burkhardt is seriously indisposed with bronchial trouble.

Miss Ella Murphy, of the Pearl Laundry, is laying off with a sore hand.

Fred Eudaly is to-day confined to his bed from the effects of an injury received while lifting last night.

The child of Henry Lahman, west of Ewing, who was taken very sick with diphtheria, is no better.

Fay, eight year old son of Albert Myer, who has been seriously indisposed for some time is but little better.

Mail messenger George Able, who is at Cincinnati for deafness writes home that he is getting along nicely.

Leonard Bartlett, who has been very sick with the grip, was taken worse last night with an attack of lung trouble.

John McDonald, of Vernon township, continues to improve slowly. He is recovering from his recent affliction and turning his attention to business.

POLITICAL BREVITIES.

The legislature canvassed the vote for governor yesterday and found Mount's plurality to be 26,077.

It is not conceded that Fairbanks will be nominated for United States senator with votes to spare, by the caucus at Indianapolis last night.

The venerable Col. Thompson, of Terre Haute, added to the senatorial stir by appearing at Indianapolis in the interest of McKeen.

Indications are that all previous inauguration crowds will be excelled by that which will gather at Washington to see McKinley sworn in.

Look at the Map.

When a railroad has reached the point where it can depend upon four words to do the work of an advertisement, it is pretty well established in public favor, and has only to keep its map or trade mark before the public as a gentle reminder. "Look at the map" seems to be all that is necessary for an advertisement of the Pennsylvania Lines, accompanied by the map to be looked at; all the rest goes without saying, the traveler knows of its equipment, the sleeping and dining cars, the excellence of track and road-bed; the map shows that its lines extend in all directions, reaching resorts and cities north, east, south and west and everywhere. If you are in the east you can go west quickly and comfortably; if you are west you can go east; if you are north you can go south, and if you are south you can go north over the Pennsylvania Lines. Decide on the place to go, the route is easily selected, you have only to "Look at the map." Get your ticket over the Pennsylvania Lines and this foremost railroad will do the rest.—A Pointer.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—Will you allow me space in your columns for a reply to an article in the Evening News January 11, which misrepresents the facts. J. H. Peters, Cal Dobbins with the notable editor of the News and lady were conducted to the dining apartment of the U. V. L. entertainment and I given seats with many others. This was all right as we wished to make our guests comfortable until supper was announced. Then it was necessary that the space be vacated and the chairs be replaced at the table. This was all done nicely and the tables served as well as the crowded condition of the room allowed, and these parties not being treated as special guests at first opportunity took chairs at the end of the table against a flue that projected from the wall and shut off the passage way so that others on that side of the table had to crowd out over the backs of their chairs. They were warned not to make such a breach of etiquette by John D. Clark and I also told them of their unmannerly conduct with the request to get up and let the guests at the other end of the table pass out. The second table had all been seated but enclosed side. Mr. Clark politely asked them to move up to the other end of the table but they refused to do so and out of respect to our guests I let them have their way. A few of our members talked it over and the matter would have been dropped and few people have known of it, but as the News has made it public, I will publish it in the right light. As Mr. Clark was an eye witness the ladies who waited on the table can substantiate other unbecoming conduct by the same parties that has not been published. We expect other squibs but they will not be noticed as the citizens of Seymour know well enough to judge for themselves.

Physical and Mental Exhaustion Gives Way to Vigorous Activity.

REV. W. T. BOUCK, the talented pastor of Grace U. B. church, Carlisle, Penn., writes September 28, 1896: "I always enjoyed good health until 1892, at which time my duties as a clergyman were of a peculiarly trying nature, subjecting me to several severe nervous shocks which, together with overwork and anxiety, impaired my general health and nervous system. Indeed I was in such a condition that the mere sight of a large congregation so wearied me that I would require a day or more for me to recover from the exhaustion. It affords me great pleasure to say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Restorative Tonic have done me untold good. Address at the Postoffice, Indianapolis, Ind., or at the office of the Daily Republican, 111 South Chestnut St., Seymour, Ind.

McKINLEY has had a long experience in public life and has a wide acquaintance among public men. He can be safely trusted to select a strong cabinet as his official family.

Compulsory attendance at school is one of the ideas this legislature should make a law. Education is the proper end of republican institutions, and parents who will not be compelled to send their children to school.—Pendleton Record.

A fair and equitable apportionment, not a gerrymander is what our people want and what the republican party is under obligation to enact. The supreme court has made the gerrymander a thing of the past and it will be folly on the part of our legislators to attempt to pass anything but a fair apportionment.

This negotiation of the arbitration treaty between this country and Great Britain is one of the most important movements in these closing days of the century. By it provisions a tribunal for arbitration is to be formed from members of the supreme courts of the two countries and all disputes arising between the two countries are to be referred to it for settlement. This plan is to be tested for a period of five years and if satisfactory may be renewed.

One reason the populists will never succeed is because they are always preaching the doctrine of pessimism. Everything is going wrong and the country is "going to the bow-wows" in their eyes. Men like to look on the bright side of things and no party which feeds on the shady side of life can hope for any great measure of success.

MARSHALL FIELD, one of the largest dry goods merchants in Chicago has made the important statement to the ways and means committee that the importation of all dry goods is falling into the hands of foreign manufacturers and merchants. This is important to the importers who have been free traders. The foreign merchant and manufacturer are able to do this because they can put a lower valuation upon their goods than they will give to an American importer, and this, under the ad valorem system, enables the foreigners to drive the American importer out of the business. In time, under the pernicious Wilson-Gorman act, the foreign importers will have their own jobbing houses in this country and their imported traveling men. Still the theoretical freetrader will continue to denounce those who desire to repeal the tariff law which robs the treasury of its rightful collections and transfers

GOV. MOUNT'S INAUGURAL.

In his inaugural yesterday, Gov. Mount displayed the same common sense that has characterized him as a farmer. The address is not a mere accumulation of words, idle words, but is full of substance which will bear perusal with great care. He drives straight to his mark and there is no uncertainty in what he has to say.

He gives the legislature some timely advice while warning them against the work of the lobbyists who bring all their powerful influence to bear for the enactment of legislation in the interest of classes. He sounds the right note when he says: "Laws should be founded upon principles of interdependence of all our industries, business interests, pursuits, callings and relations of capital and labor—of employer and employee."

The governor urges the enactment of "a mild compulsory education law" and being a practical farmer, he urges what the farmers most need, better roads, better live stock laws and more effective measures for the suppression of diseases which become epidemic among live stock.

What he says concerning the centennial celebration is timely and sensible and leaves no doubt as to his position on the question: "The committee provided for by the last General Assembly, with instructions to report to this honorable body on the subject of centennial celebration of territorial organization, are entitled to much credit for their faithful service. They have manifested a laudable state pride which is reciprocated by the progressive people of our state. If this centennial is to be observed, their plans possess much merit. The prevailing opinion, however, is that any exposition that would be creditable to our state will necessitate a vast expenditure of money. A celebration conducted with a limited expenditure, following so soon after the World's Columbian Exposition, would be attended with failure and would reflect discredit upon our state. The advisability of the observance, then, hinges upon the wisdom of expending a sufficient sum of money to insure success, and the ability of the state to bear such expenditure. Any great outlay of money at this time must argument our already heavy state debt and add to the burden of taxation. The best service that can be rendered our state, both as to its credit and honor and the welfare of our people is the adoption of a system of economy that will reduce our debt and lower the rate of taxation."

On the subject of trusts which is receiving a great deal of attention among state legislatures this winter he says: "Trusts or combinations of capital for the purpose of counteracting the law of supply and demand and with a view to arbitrarily controlling, manipulating or increasing the prices of any product, commodity or article of merchandise, should be declared a barrier to trade, and should be prohibited by law."

The message is stronger on a second reading and will convince the people of the state that no mistake was made in their choice of the leading farmer of Montgomery county as their chief executive.

At Indianapolis to-day the monetary conference is gathered and the whole country will watch their proceedings with interest. The object of this convention is to consider in detail the needs of our financial system, and to present to congress various recommendations for monetary reforms. The views of practical financiers, closely identified with business affairs and speaking with the voice of experience will no doubt exercise strong influence in shaping the future policy of the Nation.

The Year's Eclipses.

Two eclipses of the sun are scheduled for the year 1897. The first one will take place, the astronomers say, February 1. It is what is known as an annular, or ring eclipse, which means that the moon will pass across the center in such a way that if an observer were in a favorable position he would see a large black spot in the face of the chief luminary, with a wide ring of light about it. This will be visible to North America, south of a line drawn through Boston, Memphis and Los Angeles, California. It will be best observed in the country from the southern states. The second eclipse, due July 29, will be visible in all parts of the country.

Jealous of Indiana Limestone.

It would be well if Mr. Shafroth or Senator Teller should introduce a bill in congress prohibiting the use of any other than Rocky mountain stone in the construction of the mint which is to be erected in this city. It appears that there is danger that the supervising architect will order the use of an Indiana limestone. It would be simply absurd to bring stone all the way from Indiana to erect a building in the Rocky mountains. This state is full of excellent building stone, and it would be a needless expense, as well as an injury to the state, to take stone from an Indiana quarry. There is no use talking about Bedford stone being superior to that of Colorado, for if there is no stone here equal to that of Bedford, Indiana, granite can be substituted. But it is possible that the supervising architect is impervious to reason—he has already ordered the use of Indiana stone in the Pueblo building—and, therefore, it would be well to settle the matter by an act of congress. We are very sure that public sentiment would sustain the demand that none but Rocky mountain stone be used in the Denver mint.—Denver Republican.

THE ORIGINAL ARYAN.

I am the ancient Aryan, And you have done me wrong. I did not come from Hindustan—I've been here all along.

I never traveled from the east In huge successive waves. You find your ancestors deceased Inside your own old caves.

There my remains may now be sought, Mixed up with mastodons, Which very long with flints I fought Before I fought with bronze.

In simple skins I wrapped me round Ere mats I learned to make. I dug my dwellings in the ground Or reared them on a lake.

I had no pen, I'm sure of this, Although you say I penned All manner of theologies In Sanskrit and in Zend.

My nature you've misunderstood. When first I journeyed here, I worshiped chunks of stone or wood; My rites were rather queer.

The more my little ways you scan The less you'll care to praise And bless the dear old Aryan Of neolithic days.

They've mixed me up till, I declare, I hardly can report Whether I first was tall and fair, Or I was dark and short.

But on two things I take my stand Through all their noise and strife: I didn't come from Asia, and I had no higher life.

He Was Fond of Hot Potatoes.

A certain learned professor, not unknown to fame, had many little eccentricities. One of these, innocent enough in its way, was provocative of much good natured banter from his friends. He was abnormally fond of those hot potatoes which one sees every day retailed by costumers in the streets.

On many occasions he had been seen to patronize the "all 'ot" merchant at the corner of the street where he lived. The vendor was a stork man, and the professor's open air lectures, dealing with the health giving properties of a baked potato, never wearied him.

One morning, however, the "all 'ot" man was ill, and his deputy took charge of the business for a day. When the professor arrived, and, having invested his penny, continued his lecture as usual, his audience evidently entertained grave doubts as to his sanity.

"Perhaps you are not aware of it, my good man," said the professor, with his mouth full, "but it would take me many years to enumerate the benefits derived from the modest potato. Look, now, I grasp this one in my hand, so. My fingers were rendered numb and useless by the cold. The grateful heat from the potato is communicated to the digits, creating a healthful glow, and bringing back the wandering senses."

"Yer don't say so!" interrupted the street merchant. "Look 'ere guv'nor, why don't yer try one in yer 'at?"

LEGISLATURE'S WORK.

Both Houses Hold Short Sessions and Adjourn.

LEGISLATIVE EXPENSE BILL.

Senate Increases the Appropriation—An Attempt to Reconsider the House Rules Defeated—Joint Session to Canvass the Vote For Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 12.—The inaugural ceremonies occupied the attention of the legislature almost to the exclusion of everything else on Monday. The senate was in session during the morning only long enough to pass the bill appropriating money for the expenses of the session, and did not meet in the afternoon. It was amended so as to make the amount $105,000, instead of $100,000, as the bill passed the house. The amendment will probably be concurred in by the house, for two years ago strict economy was practiced, but still there was a deficiency in the appropriation, the amount being fixed at $100,000. The house held a brief session and adjourned until today. The only incident of the session was an effort to reconsider and upset the rules adopted last Friday. A motion to reconsider was offered by Representative Downing, and put to a vote after some time had been wasted in a parliamentary wrangle. It was lost by a vote of 51 to 47. Then Mr. Ware, another Democratic member, offered a resolution denouncing the rule as an unprecedented bit of gag law, but the speaker declined to entertain this.

The two houses held a joint session previous to the inauguration to canvass the vote on governor and lieutenant governor. The figures of the secretary of state were accepted, and Governor Mount's official plurality was declared to be 29,077.

SENATORIAL CONTEST.

Forces of the Two Leading Candidates Actively at Work.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12.—Yesterday was practically the last day of the senatorial struggle and it witnessed a final spurt by both the Fairbanks and McKeen followings. The followers of Wallace and Taylor did not make very strenuous efforts. The position of each of these candidates has been rather of a receptive nature.

Mr. Fairbanks' friends express surprise that all the candidates remained in the race. They had expected that one or two of them would withdraw before the time came for the caucus, but it now seems certain that all four of the names that have been considered, will be presented to the caucus and that none of them will be without votes. Fairbanks' people claim from 54 to 68 votes, while friends of Mr. McKeen concede but from 26 to 38 votes.

At the Fairbanks' caucus late yesterday there were present 40 members and 11 accounted for. Senator L. P. Newby was chosen as their candidate for chairman of the joint caucus and Representative Henderson for secretary. There was no loss of confidence on the part of the friends of Fairbanks and they regarded the thing as thoroughly settled.

On the other hand the friends of Mr. McKeen seemed equally confident of defeating Fairbanks. "The field has 48 votes," said Mr. Filbeck, "and there are others that are doubtful. Fairbanks has never had more than 34 sure votes and has no more than that now."

"We note no change," said Senator Early, who has charge of Mr. McKeen's interests. "Mr. Fairbanks has but 38 votes and cannot get any more. So far as we know there is no new alignment."

The great propriety of gold standard England is shown by the recently published volume of judicial statistics which shows that an estate was administered for every ten deaths, or one estate for every five adults, whether male or female, though savings banks deposits to the amount of £100 do not require administration.

The progressive ladies of Westfield Ind., issued a "Woman's Edition" of the Westfield News, bearing date of April 3, 1896. The paper is filled with matter of interest to women, and we notice the following from a correspondent, which the editors printed, realizing that it treats upon a matter of vital importance to their sex: "The best remedy for croup, colds and bronchitis that I have been able to find is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For family use it has no equal. I gladly recommend it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by C. W. Milhous.

The man with the standing ad is the solid man of the community. In summer or winter, in sunshine or rain, his name greets the public eye with every issue of the paper, and the public come in time to regard him as well established in successful business, whether they have been his patrons or not. "Nothing succeeds like success," and the public once getting the idea that a man is doing well, stands ready to patronize him and turns to him naturally when it wants anything in his line. In this simple fact lies the whole secret of persistent advertising.

DR. CHARLTON DEAD.

Samuel H. Charlton, M. D., died at 3 o'clock a. m., Jan. 12, 1897, aged 70 years, 2 months and 11 days. He has been very feeble in health ever since the death of his wife over a year ago and has been confined to his home for more than three months.

Dr. Charlton was born in Jefferson county, Ind., Nov. 1, 1826, being the eldest of eleven children, born to Thomas and Alice Henry Charlton. At the age of 4 his father removed to Switzerland county where he raised and educated his children. In 1846 at the age of 20, he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Handy T. Davis then practicing medicine at Vevay, and later continued his studies with Dr. T. G. Gale, of Vevay. In the spring of 1850 after attending a course of lectures at the Western Reserve Medical College, at Cleveland, Ohio, he commenced the practice of his profession at Hardenburg, Jennings county. In Dec. 1852 he was married to Cordelia Andrews, daughter of Hon. Alanson and Laura Andrews, of Vernon, Jennings county, to which place he removed in 1854. In March, 1858, he removed to Seymour, where he permanently located and practiced his profession for over 35 years.

During the civil war he was assistant surgeon of the Sixth Indiana regiment. In 1878 he was president of the Jackson County Medical Society; in the same year he was president of the Mitchell District Medical Society; in 1881 he was first vice president of the Tri-State Medical Society of Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky; in 1882 he was vice president of the Indiana State Medical Society; in 1887 he became a member of the International Medical Congress which met at Washington City. In 1890 he was appointed a member of the pension board of examining surgeons and, at its organization was elected president of the board.

Dr. Charlton and his wife were both zealous members of the First Presbyterian church of Seymour. He has been a ruling elder for 23 years, and in 1879 was a commissioner to the general assembly at Saratoga, N. Y. In his fraternal relations he holds a membership with the orders of Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Honor and G. A. R.

The immediate relatives of Dr. Charlton who are still living are his brothers and sister as follows: Prof. T. A. Charlton, superintendent of the Plainfield reform school, Orlando C. Charlton, of Waco, Tex., Mrs. Scott, of Madison, and a brother near Vevay.

Dr. Charlton stood high with his fellow citizens both as a professional man and as a progressive citizen. He has contributed materially toward building up the interests of Seymour. In professional circles he was widely known and highly respected as is indicated by the large honors which came to him from his professional brethren.

The funeral will take place in the Presbyterian church to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Stevenson.

He also hurt his leg about the same time, blood poisoning set in, and the best of treatment failed to save him.

Indiana's New Governor.

South Bend times. Indiana's future governor, James A. Mount, has as much of a practical business way of conducting his farm as the successful merchants or manufacturers have of conducting their enterprises. Professor Arville Bittling, of Purdue University, was brought up on a farm in Marshall county. He is now a specialist in bacteriology with special reference to diseases of animals. He is also a friend of Governor Mount and is frequently at the governor's farm in Mount gomery county to examine stock. On one of these visits a little over a year ago, the subject of hog cholera was thoroughly discussed and Governor Mount decided from the prevalence of the disease in different sections of the state it would not be safe to invest in hogs to feed for the fall market of 1896 though the profits on this "hog crop" for 1896 amounted to the snug sum of $3,500. His farm was put to corn and he now has 8,000 bushels of that cereal.

A great many farmers would say at this point "the governor missed it." Corn is only 17 cents per bushel. But the governor did not miss it. He is feeding seventy head of cattle and he is going to feed all of his corn to his stock. In the spring, after his neighbors and other farmers have wintered their cattle and have no more feed for them, he will buy them as cheap as he could last fall. He thus saves feed, shelter and care in winter. The feed required to keep the stock warm in winter will about fatten them in the summer. This is the business side of farming, and it is the practical business that has made Governor Mount authority on farm topics for several years, and places him in the front rank of Indiana's most successful and prosperous farmers. His farm is among the very best in the state. Money to loan and 63 acre farm for sale. J. BALSLEY, N.

AFFLICTED.

Harmon Resner is quite feeble with infirmity.

George B. Stout is feeling much better to-day.

Miss Maud Carter was able to sit up most of yesterday.

Alex Groff is improving some from the effects of back trouble.

Mrs. George Burkhardt is seriously indisposed with bronchial trouble.

Miss Ella Murphy, of the Pearl Laundry, is laying off with a sore hand.

Fred Eudaly is to-day confined to his bed from the effects of an injury received while lifting last night.

The child of Henry Lahman, west of Ewing, who was taken very sick with diphtheria, is no better.

Fay, eight year old son of Albert Myer, who has been seriously indisposed for some time is but little better.

Mail messenger George Able, who is at Cincinnati for deafness writes home that he is getting along nicely.

Leonard Bartlett, who has been very sick with the grip, was taken worse last night with an attack of lung trouble.

John McDonald, of Vernon township, continues to improve slowly. He is recovering from his recent affliction and turning his attention to business.

POLITICAL BRIEVITIES.

The legislature canvassed the vote for governor yesterday and found Mount's plurality to be 26,077.

It is not conceded that Fairbanks will be nominated for United States senator with votes to spare, by the caucus at Indianapolis last night.

The venerable Col. Thompson, of Terre Haute, added to the senatorial stir by appearing at Indianapolis in the interest of McKean.

Indications are that all previous inauguration crowds will be excelled by that which will gather at Washington to see McKinley sworn in.

Look at the Map.

When a railroad has reached the point where it can depend upon four words to do the work of an advertisement, it is pretty well established in public favor, and has only to keep its map or trade mark before the public as a gentle reminder. "Look at the map" seems to be all that is necessary for an advertisement of the Pennsylvania Lines, accompanied by the map to be looked at; all the rest goes without saying, the traveler knows of its equipment, the sleeping and dining cars, the excellence of track and road-bed; the map shows that its lines extend in all directions, reaching resorts and cities north, east, south and west and everywhere. If you are in the east you can go west quickly and comfortably; if you are west you can go east; if you are north you can go south, and if you are south you can go north over the Pennsylvania Lines. Decide on the place to go, the route is easily selected, you have only to "Look at the map." Get your ticket over the Pennsylvania Lines and this foremost railroad will do the rest.—A Pointer.

A Card.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—Will you allow me space in your columns for a reply to an article in the Evening News January 11, which misrepresents the facts. J. H. Peters, Cal Dobbins with the notable editor of the News and lady were conducted to the dining apartment of the U. V. L. entertainment and I given seats with many others. This was all right as we wished to make our guests comfortable until supper was announced. Then it was necessary that the space be vacated and the chairs be replaced at the table. This was all done nicely and the tables served as well as the crowded condition of the room allowed, and these parties not being treated as special guests at first opportunity took chairs at the end of the table against the chair projected from the wall and shut off the passage way so that others on that side of the table had to crowd out over the backs of their chairs. They were warned not to make such a breach of etiquette by John D. Clark and I also told them of their unmannerly conduct with the request to get up and let the guests at the other end of the table pass out. The second table had all been seated but enclosed side. Mr. Clark politely asked them to move up to the other end of the table but they refused to do so and out of respect to our guests I let them have their way. A few of our members talked it over and the matter would have been dropped and few people have known of it, but as the News has made it public, I will publish it in the right light. As Mr. Clark was an eye witness the ladies who waited on the table can substantiate other unbecoming conduct by the same parties that has not been published. We expect others a squib but they will not be noticed as the citizens of Seymour know well enough to judge for themselves.

ANCIENT SALIC LAW.

IT PREVENTS WOMEN FROM BEING QUEENS IN SOME COUNTRIES.

No Other Law Has Caused So Much Bloodshed—Through This Code the Kingdom of Hanover Lost Its Independence and Was Absorbed by Prussia.

A relic of prehistoric barbarism, of times when women were regarded as soulless beings but one remove superior to the brute creation, is that Salic law which debar the fair sex from all rights of succession to most of the thrones of Europe. No one knows with any degree of certainty the origin of this law, although many theories and arguments have been advanced regarding it, yet there is no law that has been the cause of so much bloodshed and desolation throughout the last 800 years.

Nearly all the historic wars that have taken place in Europe since the days of the first crusade may be attributed to the existence of this law, and even in the present century sanguinary struggles have taken place on its account. Great Britain and Russia are the only two countries where it has never secured any foothold.

Spain, Portugal and Holland have within the last 100 years erased the law from their statute books, and have benefited by the change, while since the reign of Maria Theresa and the seven years' war it exists only in a modified form in Austria, and, perhaps, not at all in the kingdom of Hungary.

But it is still in force in Denmark, in Sweden, in Prussia and all the other federal states of the German empire, as well as in Belgium, Italy, Roumania, Serbia, Bulgaria and Greece, the national constitution of which, being of a more mushroom character and drawn up by enlightened statesmen of the present century, might reasonably be expected to be more up to date and free from such narrow medieval prejudices and doctrines.

It is precisely in the three countries which are now ruled by women—England, Holland and Spain—that the greatest degree of peace and prosperity prevails, the three royal widows displaying far more common sense, enlightened statesmanship and political sagacity than any of their brother monarchs.

Under the circumstances it must be a matter of regret that the Salic law should debar a number of beautiful, charming and clever princesses from succeeding to thrones. Thus there is the pretty Princess Pauline of Wurtemberg, the only child of the present king and a young girl whom it is no exaggeration to describe as the national idol.

Yet, notwithstanding the fact that all the affection of the people is centered in her, she is compelled by the Salic law to stand aside and to permit her father's crown to descend to a distant cousin, born and bred not in Wurtemberg, but in Austria, and who, in addition to being regarded as a foreigner, has the supreme disadvantage, in the eyes of the Lutherans and Protestants, constituting the vast majority of the nation, of being a Catholic.

Although King Oscar of Norway is one of the most enlightened and accomplished of men, endowed with a character that can only be described as unblemished, he has not proved a successful ruler.

The fact is that the king, in spite of all his talents and his perfections, moral and otherwise, is entirely wanting in that personal magnetism, and, if I may be permitted to coin the expression, that public tact which distinguished his homely, genial and by no means so intellectual brother, King Charles XV.

The latter had only one daughter, Princess Louisa, who inherited his qualities, and who, in spite of her plainness, was just as much the idol of both the Norwegians and Swedes as Princess Pauline of Wurtemberg is at Stuttgart.

Over six feet high, and far from being endowed with intellect above the average, she possesses the best temper in the world and an inexhaustible fund of merriment and good humor, and a heart as big as her laugh, which has been compared to that of a horse.

Had she been permitted to succeed her father as queen regent of Sweden and Norway it is doubtful whether the present conflict in the sister kingdom would ever have arrived at the acute stage, and certainly the loyalty to the throne on both sides of the border would not have reached its present low ebb.

But, being debarred from her father's throne by the Salic law, she married the crown prince of Denmark, carrying out of the country of her birth all the vast wealth which she had inherited, partly from her father, and partly, too, from her Dutch grandmother, which is estimated at $5,000,000.

It is to the Salic law that the kingdom of Hanover is indebted for the loss of its independence and for its absorption by Prussia, with all the disadvantages which that entails, economic, political and social. Had Queen Victoria not been barred by this statute from succeeding to the throne of Hanover at the time when she ascended that of Great Britain there is no doubt that Hanover would have been enjoying at the present moment the same commercial prosperity and manifold advantages which have fallen to the lot of the English since the beginning of the Victorian era.

But instead the Salic law made necessary the separation of the crown of Hanover from that of England, and it passed in 1837, not to Victoria, but to the Duke of Cumberland. His very first act on succeeding to the throne was to repeal the grant of all the popular liberties conceded by his younger brother, the Duke of Cambridge, who had been acting as viceroy, and until 1836 Hanover, although free from the obligation of compulsory military service and unhampered by any Prussian restrictions upon trade, remained a hotbed of feudalism and one of the most retrograde states in Europe.—Cincinnati Enquirer

CLAY DISAPPOINTED.

HIS DEFEAT FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION IN 1839.

The Part Taken by Thurlow Weed and Horace Greeley—A Plot Admitted—How the Senator Received the News of the Convention's Action.

The Whig convention of 1839 was held in a new Lutheran church in Harrisburg, and it is a safe assumption that never before or since has a house of God been made the scene of so much and so adroit political maneuvering as went on there for the purpose of preventing the nomination of Henry Clay for the presidency. The chief manipulator was Thurlow Weed, who appeared there as the friend of Governor Seward, and the future member of the powerful firm of Seward, Weed & Greeley. This firm was indeed the outcome of the ensuing campaign. Greeley was at the convention, little dreaming that the campaign which was to follow would give him the opportunity for developing the qualities which were to make him the first editor of his time and lead to the foundation of a great newspaper to be forever linked indissolubly with his name.

Weed went into convention with the determination of defeating Clay. He says in his autobiography that he had had the New York delegation instructed for Scott to keep it from Clay, his real candidate being Harrison.

He entered into an agreement with friends of Webster, on the way to Harrisburg from New York city, to act together for Clay's defeat. Webster was in Europe at the time and had sent word to his friends declining to be a candidate, primarily because of Weed's refusal to support him. After detailing these facts Mr. Weed goes on to say that, on reaching Harrisburg, "we found a decided plurality in favor of Mr. Clay," but that, "in the opinion of the delegates from Pennsylvania and New York, Mr. Clay could not carry either of those states, and without them he could not be elected."

Weed admits a bargain in favor of Harrison with the friends both of Webster and of Scott, and says the "final vote was intentionally delayed by the friends of the stronger candidate (Harrison) for 24 hours" in order to placate the angry friends of Clay, "whose disappointment and vexation found excited expression."

Greeley makes frank admission in his "Recollections of a Busy Life" as to the plot by saying that the parties to it, chiefly Weed, "judged that he (Clay) could not be chosen, if nominated, while another could be, and acted accordingly," adding, "If politics do not meditate the achievement of beneficent ends through the choice and use of the safest and most effective means, I wholly misapprehend them."

This somewhat Jesuitical view did not strike Clay and his friends as an adequate justification of the methods by which an admitted majority of the convention had been prevented from expressing its will. John Tyler of Virginia, one of Clay's most ardent friends in the convention, was so overcome with grief at Harrison's nomination, that he shed tears, and after several unavailing efforts to get some one else to take the nomination for vice president Tyler was named for it, his tears having convinced the convention that the placing of so devoted a friend of Clay on the ticket would go far to heal the wounds that the methods of the convention had caused.

Clay's rage at the outcome was unbounded. He had been assuming in the senate a lofty indifference to the presidency, his famous saying, "I would rather be right than be president," having been made public only a short time before the convention met. There was nobody in the senate at that time of sufficiently nimble wit to think of the biting retort which Speaker Reed made years later made to a congressman who for the thousandth time was strutting about in Clay's cast off garments: "Don't give yourself the slightest uneasiness. You'll never be either." But Clay had given himself great uneasiness, for he was most desirous of the nomination. He had been a candidate eight years earlier, when he had no chance of election, and he believed firmly now that if nominated he could be elected.

When the news from Harrisburg reached him in Washington, he lost all control of himself. "He had been drinking heavily in the excitement of expectation," says Henry A. Wise, who was with him. "He rose from his chair, and, walking backward and forward rapidly, lifting his feet like a horse straitjacketed in both legs, stamped his boots upon the floor, exclaiming: 'My friends are not worth the powder and shot it would take to kill them. It is a diabolical intrigue, I know now, which has betrayed me. I am the most unfortunate man in the history of parties—always run by my friends when sure to be defeated, and now betrayed for a nomination when I or any one would be sure of an election.'"

A Story of Crockett.

At the booksellers' dinner in London S. R. Crockett told how he was recently introduced to a lady to whom his profession was mentioned. "Mr. Crockett," she said during the evening, "I hear you are an author. Have you published any of your works yet?" Mr. Crockett enjoyed telling the story, though it was at his own expense. But he was decidedly nonplused for a moment when a glee club which was present immediately burst forth with the glee, "Strike the Lyre."

ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR 1897

The Millionaire's Eagle Eye.

Another story illustrative of the daily life of a Chicago millionaire may help to explain why some people have more money than others.

This millionaire invited a visitor from another city to meet him at a certain hour and accompany him to the stockyards, where he has large interests.

The millionaire rode up in a side-bar buggy somewhat the worse for mud and wear, drawn by a shaggy but active horse. He explained that before starting for the yards he would have to go to one of the large banks down town, as he was on the board which regulated loans, and he had to pass on an application for a loan of $500,000.

They stopped in front of the bank, and the rich man hurried in and remained several minutes. He came out on a run, and they started rattled bang for the stockyards and Packingtown.

When they arrived and were entering the packing house, they saw an old man sorting out into barrels a heap of bones and fatty remnants. The bones were trimmed and put into one barrel and the flesh and fat into another barrel.

The millionaire owner of the place walked over to the workman and began asking questions. Then he drew off his coat, rolled back his shirt sleeves to the shoulder and began rummaging among the bones. He found several which had not been properly stripped, and the workman received a scolding which he will remember all his life.

The stripping of those bones was just as important as the loaning of $500,000.—Chicago Record.

A Pumice Stone Barrier.

A floating barrier of pumice stone 19 miles long, over 1,000 yards wide and 15 feet deep, closing a seaport to all vessels as effectually as a boom could do, is not the sort of thing one is likely to forget, and yet that was one of the results of the Krakatoa eruption, the port being Telok Retcong, in Sunda straits. Formed in a few hours, it would almost seem to be the supreme effort of nature in the pumice making line were it not that such immense quantities are found at the bottom of the sea—a queer place for pumice stone. But pumice, when produced, is really heavy. It is only the air cavities in it that make it light, and as it floats it becomes water logged and down it goes. Most of the pumice we use in Europe comes from the Lipari islands, north of Sicily, "the home of Vulcan," whence Vulcan is the name of one of them, and cur "volcano" as descriptive of the natural feature of which it is the type. Here are the pumice quarries—at Monte Chirico and its craters Monte Pelata and Forgia Vecchia—where over 1,000 men are at work in the narrow tunnels and galleries, lighted by clay lamps of antique form. The whole hillside is perforated with groups of these tunnels, which number between 200 and 300 and are so narrow that the men can hardly pass each other in them. And just as coal is found in beds alternated with sandstone and shale, so the pumice is in layers—b harder lavas and ashes.—Leisure
